Red Roots is a name that you have heard a lot of around Southern Gospel Music in recent months. This group of sisters latest project is titled "Triplicity" and it has ten songs on it that are sure to please red Roots fans everywhere!

The project begins with an upbeat song titled "Seven Days" and it reminds us that our lives are in good hands if we place it in the hands of the one who built the world in seven days. "Ordinary Girl" is the next song on the project and it reminds the listener that if God lives in you, He can use you, an ordinary person, to change the world. The tempo slows down a little with "Great Big Yes." The song is an awesome reminder that God is always there to hear you when you turn to Him with your trials and struggles.

"Beautiful" is the next song on the project and this reminds us that God is always working a plan in our life and that the end result is always beautiful! Great message in this song. The pace picks up once again with "All Of My Life." The song, written by co-producer Micah Schweinsberg, will become a listen favorite quickly. "If I Could" is next on the project and this song has a touching message in it. Next on the project we find a song titled "One More Night" and this song is a powerful song about prayer and it reminds us that God will always be there for you.

"Straight Shooter" is an upbeat song with a unique message that will be enjoyed by many. "Beautiful Storm" is a Tony Wood and Belinda Smith compilation that reminds us that God can and will create a beautiful storm in our lives. The final song slows things down with "Come Around." It is a beautiful ending to the project.

The project is a good one with several songs with great messages. My favorite songs from the project are "Seven Days," "Great Big Yes" and "Beautiful Storm."
