Quick ... what group is one of the most talented and fastest rising groups in Southern Gospel Music? Why, it's the Quicks of course! What a great sound and this is one talented family. The latest project from the Quicks is a great listen that you will enjoy time and time again.

"Right Here Right Now" was written by Sally Quick and this up tempo song starts the project off right! It is a great song and the Quicks sing it perfectly. "At The End Of The Day" is a song that reminds us of God's faithfulness to us throughout each day. The next song is titled "He Went A Little Farther" and it's a unique song but the message is awesome how the Lord went all the way to Grace! I love it! "An Ordinary Day" is one of those songs that just grabs you right from the beginning. The songs speaks of how each day, no matter how ordinary, is the day that the Lord has made.

I always love to see a group go back and get an older song. The Quicks did that with a great arrangement of the Gaither classic, "If It Keeps Getting Better." This is also one of two songs on the project that Sally didn't have a hand in writing. "Testimony In Progress" is a cool melody that also does a fine job of reminding us that each Christian is a testimony for God in progress. "I Wouldn't Change Knowing The Lord" is the next song and it basically says that we wouldn't change a single thing since the Lord saved me! Amen to that!

"Rolling Along" kicks up the tempo a notch and this is good, old fashioned southern Gospel singing the way it was intended! Of course, JD Sumner wrote the song with that in mind! The Quicks do a phenomenal job singing it. "Time With The King" reminds us of that great day when we will be forever with God in Heaven. "Either Way It Goes" is a beautiful ballad that reminds us that no matter what God decides for us, we are a winner either way. The final song on the project is one of three co-written by Daryl Williams and Sally Quick. The up beat song is a great ending to the project and "The Word Is Out" reminds us of the great saving message of Christ.

The Quicks truly are an awesome group. This project should yield them a bunch of new fans and will only do great things for their ministry. Sally Quick is an outstanding songwriter as she proves on this project. The vocal performance and production is also very good. My favorite songs on the project are "Right Here Right Now," "If It Keeps Getting Better" and "I Wouldn't Change Knowing The Lord." The entire project is first class and after listening to it you too will agree, "The Word It Out" that the Quicks are a great group!
